Liner Rochambeau Is Burning In Midocean

Passengers and Crew Number 571, But Wireless From Capt. Juhan Says He Can Make Halifax—Officials Do Not Suspect Spies.

Carries A Heavy Cargo of War Munitions For Allies—30 Americans on Board.

New York, Nov. 8.—The French liner Rochambeau, which sailed from New York Saturday with 421 passengers and a crew of 150, is on fire at sea.

A wireless message telling of a blaze which broke out in the reserve bunkers of the ship was received at the offices of the French line late this afternoon from Captain Juhan.

The passengers aboard the vessel include 171 in the first cabin and 250 in the steerage. The message received from Captain Juhan was as follows:

"Fire in reserve bunkers. Spontaneous combustion. Think no danger. If cannot control will go into Halifax. Otherwise continue into Bordeaux."

The Rochambeau's position was not stated in Captain Juhan's wireless message but General Passenger Agent Faguet said she probably was within a few hours of Halifax.

Another passenger carrying steamer owned by the same line, La Touraine, caught fire mysteriously a few months ago while enroute to Bordeaux from New York. Her captain reported that an explosion aboard was caused by bombs and several arrests of alleged spies were made upon the arrival of the vessel in France.

Don't Suspect Spies.

Officials of the French line, however, said they were satisfied from the captain's message that the fire aboard the Rochambeau was not the work of spies. Cap-

Wrong Man Is Arrested

The [illegible] arrested [illegible] Spain last week and taken to Newcomerstown on a charge of stealing a sum of money from the home of John Gardner, north of Newcomerstown, was released from custody Sunday as a mistake had been made as to his identity. He returned to Gallipolis. The real culprit is said to be E. F. Stoetz, alias John M. Smith, who represented himself as a solicitor.

Daniel Ford, Coal Miner, Badly Hurt

While working at the [illegible] Daniel Ford, Jr., aged about 26, was seriously injured when he was struck by a falling stone about [illegible] o'clock Monday morning. Ford lives with his father, Daniel Ford, of near Conesville. It was due to [illegible] the coal [illegible] necessary to strip a bed of clay from the coal and the blast. As Ford was preparing for the blast, a heavy stone in some manner became loosened and fell upon him, cutting a deep gash over the eye and fracturing the left collarbone. Other severe bruises about the back were sustained. Dr. E. C. McCurdy was called and attended his injuries. Unless complications ensue, he will recover.

Has Two "Calls" In Short Order

Officer Fretague had a grouch Monday. Just as an unknown stranger was attempting to converse with one [illegible] "hello" girls over the [illegible] in the Pennsylvania station, the officer collared him and [illegible] him down to the station. He was intoxicated, but [illegible] that "he had a call."

Likes Booze Better Than His Family

Thomas Skelton [illegible] held [illegible] county [illegible] pending the settlement of his case. Skelton was arrested Saturday night by Probation Officer Bruns [illegible] charge of [illegible] support of his three children. Too much drinking is said to be the cause of his negligence.

A. A. Ripple Badly Hurt

A. A. Ripple, aged 50, West Lafayette manufacturer, was compelled to undergo the amputation of his right arm Monday afternoon as the result of an accident at the Ripple plant near West Lafayette earlier in the day.

Ripple was at work about the plant when in some manner his clothing was caught and his arm drawn into the cogs of a machine. Ripple was held a prisoner for an hour and a half before he succeeded in releasing himself from his precarious position.

With the bones in his arm splintered and the ligaments and muscles torn asunder so that the arm was held only by shreds of skin, Ripple walked half a mile to the West Lafayette Enameling plant where he received help.

He was brought to the City hospital in an auto where he was attended by Dr. McClain. It was found necessary to amputate the arm two inches from the shoulder. Dr. McClain was assisted by Drs. E. C. Carr and H. R. McCurdy.

Fizz Water Douses Fire

A seltzer bottle was put to a novel use Monday morning. Sparks from a passing engine ignited the awning in front of Jake Holmes' saloon. One of the bartenders grabbed a seltzer bottle and with the aid of the seltzer and a bucket of water extinguished the blaze. Damage not exceeding $10 resulted. The fire department was called but arrived too late for action.

Hurst Lands A Fancy Job

J. Ellis Hurst, New Philadelphia editor, was appointed a member of the state liquor license commission yesterday by Governor Willis to succeed Byron M. Clendening, Democrat, of Cincinnati, whom the governor removed two weeks ago for having participated in the referendum on the McGuire bill.

Hurst formerly was a member of the Ohio senate and is editor of the New Philadelphia Times, one of the first Democratic papers in the state to come out in opposition to the re-election of former Governor Cox. He is a radical dry and accompanied William J. Bryan on his recent prohibition tour through the state.

The salary of license commissioner is $3000. If Clendening loses in the supreme court, Hurst will serve until the first Monday in August, 1917. He will be chairman of the commission by virtue of his having the shortest term to serve.

Repair Break in Water Line

The Coshocton Light and Heating Company Monday had a force of workmen repairing the break in the hot water line at the intersection of Sixth and Main streets. A break in the sewer at that point had allowed the leaking water to eat the iron pipe of the hot water line. Quite a bit of annoyance had been caused by the escaping vapor.

Veteran Falls In The Street

James Miller, an aged veteran, who stopped in Coshocton Monday enroute from New Philadelphia to the Soldier's home in Dayton, suffered an attack of heart trouble in front of the J. B. Romans store on Main street Monday afternoon. He fell to the sidewalk and was unconscious when several people nearby, who saw him fall, reached his side.

Dr. J. G. Sanders was summoned and after giving the veteran temporary relief recommended him in an ambulance to the city hall where the aged man was made comfortable for the night. It is [illegible] he will be sent on to Dayton today.

Says Wife Won't Live With Him

Charging that his wife abandoned him and refused to live with him, Oley Bostrom, pottery worker, Monday filed a divorce petition in probate court Monday. Bostrom is represented by Attorney J. L. McDowell. He asks that the [illegible] now [illegible] years old, be awarded to its grand[illegible] Mrs. Ollie Shock. The Bostroms were married [illegible] at [illegible] East Liverpool.

ADMITTED TO HOSPITAL

Valentine Wilhelm, aged 61, of Adams street, was admitted to the City hospital Monday to undergo treatment for cancer of the [illegible]. His condition is not thought to be serious.

Can't Use Tomahawk

While using a sharp hatchet Monday afternoon, Mrs. Robert Huff, of North Water street, received a deep gash in the back of her hand. Mrs. Huff was holding [illegible] in her left hand and the hatchet in her right. As she was striking a blow her hand slipped [illegible] the blade. Dr. McClain was called and closed the gash with several stitches.

Local Girl Runs Amuck

That Miss Lucy Brown, said to be a former resident of this city, had recently become crazed and run amuck on the streets of New Philadelphia was the substance of a rumor which had wide circulation here Monday.

It is said that Miss Brown, with a revolver in her hand, had appeared on the streets in a crazed condition, mentioning the name of a Coshocton young man and exclaiming "I want him."

The story, however, could not be verified last night. A police official [illegible] that the report came to his office Sunday.

Death Comes Unexpectedly To Aged Man

The funeral of Henry Brewer Trucks, aged 72, who died at his home, 531 North Second street, Sunday, will be held this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at the home. Rev. H. H. Davis, pastor of the United Brethren church will conduct the services.

Mr. Truck's death came after several years of suffering from organic heart trouble and asthma from which he had been almost helpless for the last year. His death however was unexpected and after having eaten a hearty dinner he was smoking his pipe when he dropped to the floor and was dead when his wife reached his side an instant later.

Mr. Trucks was born in Plymouth, Richmond county. He was a cooper and had followed his trade in many of the smaller towns in the state when he came to Coshocton thirty years ago and was employed in the old cooper mill at Roscoe until it quit operations. For ten years he had been employed by I. D. Cohen, junk dealer but was obliged to quit work about two years ago owing to failing health. In 1863 at Bucyrus he was united in marriage with Miss Laura Slaybaugh and she together with the following children survive: Albert Trucks who was last heard of in Kansas City, Mo.; Oscar Truck, and Mrs. Charles Young, of Coshocton. Three grandchildren—Gladys, Emmett and Charles Young—also survive.

Local Boys Win Honors

Harold M. Orr, Coshocton, Ohio R. R. No. 7, Clarence Wolfe, Coshocton, Ohio R. R. No. 1, and Cecil Buxton, Tunnel Hill, Ohio, have just received formal certificates from the Ohio State University, stating that they will each receive a free trip to Farmers' Week January 31, February 1, 2, 3, 4, at Columbus.

This honor comes to these boys on account of their success in the Live Stock Judging Contest at the county fair. They have also been advised that they will participate in the State Live Stock Judging Contest as a team representing their home county. In this contest handsome prizes will be given to the winning teams as well as to the highest individuals.

Each certificate bears a reproduction of the handsome gold medal, which will be awarded to the boy who stands first in judging [illegible] of live stock in the state contest, together with the [illegible] of W. O. Thompson, president of Ohio State University, and Clark S. Wheeler, Superintendent of Agricultural Extension. It is thought that a number of people in this vicinity will accompany the boys when they go to Columbus at that date.

Socialist Split Growing Wider

As a result of the [illegible] State [illegible] members of the Socialist [illegible] House, a prominent Socialist, was ordered from the [illegible] Sunday.

For the past six [illegible] Socialist [illegible] the office of the [illegible] the Shaw [illegible] House had come to the office [illegible] meeting of the [illegible] progress. He was called [illegible] and told by the [illegible] that his presence was not desired.

House was formerly in the employ of the city as a sprinkling inspector during the water shortage about a year ago. A statement from him appears on another page.

W. J. Wright Passes Away

W. J. Wright, aged 67, who died at his home at New Moscow, Sunday evening, following a long illness from heart trouble, will be buried today at the Branch church cemetery. Services will be conducted at the church this morning by Rev. Mr. Adams assisted by Rev. Mr. Felton, of Jefferson, formerly pastor of Branch church. The cortege will leave the house at 10 o'clock and the services held upon its arrival at the church.

Mr. Wright was a prominent farmer of the New Moscow vicinity, where he was born and spent his entire life. He had been married twice, his first wife, who was Miss Mary Burkhurst having died fourteen years ago. Three years later he married Miss Charlotte Hayes, who together with the following children survive: Lawrence, of Trinway; Mrs. Henry Warfel, of Canton; Mrs. John Sproule, Mrs. Guy Park, Mrs. Leslie De Moss, Emmett and John Wright, of New Moscow.

Hood Heads Ministers

At the meeting of the Coshocton County Ministerial association held at Carnegie library Monday afternoon, Rev. C. H. Hood, pastor of the Church of Christ was elected president to succeed Rev. Dr. J. S. Secrest who resigned when he was appointed as superintendent of the Akron district of the Northeast Ohio conference of the M. E. church.

At the next meeting of the association on November 28, Rev. Dr. E. O. Buxton will read a paper on, "Cause for Superficial Thinking," and Rev. C. H. Hood will have a paper on, "Church Publicity." The meetings are held the second and fourth Mondays in each month and are open to the public.

Dies After Long Illness

Sidney Howard Cotter, brother of Mrs. William E. Hart, of South Fourth street, died at his home in Perrysburg, Sunday following a lingering illness from Bright's disease.

Mr. Cotter was well known to many Coshocton people. He had visited [illegible] the Hart home and [illegible] [illegible] the Sycamore [illegible]

Miss Lula [illegible] spent Sunday [illegible] Dayton.

Council Increases Solicitor's Salary

Merrell Retained in Case of City Against Gas Company — Paving of Second St. Slated for Spring Despite Protests.

Clark Files Bill For Damages Due to Flooded Condition of Streets.

With a view to eliminating a source of constant trouble over a provision of the city statutes fixing the salary of the City Solicitor at $350 and office rent, Council last night introduced and under a suspension of rules passed an ordinance fixing the salary of the office at $600. The clause in the old section referring to the payment of office rent has been a source of trouble in the past. Incidentally the action of council last night placed Coshocton on an equal footing with other cities of like size which almost without exception have been paying a higher salary than that paid by Coshocton heretofore. The ordinance becomes effective January 1.

Will Pave In Spring.

An ordinance to improve South Second street from Mulberry street to the corporation line was introduced and given its first reading. It is proposed to pave the street next spring. Numerous protests against the improvement have been made and residents of the street have threatened injunctions. Pending further information, council allowed the matter to rest with the single reading.

Following the reading of an ordinance to improve Eleventh street by the construction of a sanitary sewer from Oak avenue to Chestnut street, rules were suspended and the ordinance given its second and third reading. It was passed unanimously.

The Gas Co. Case.

Solicitor Ely was formally authorized to employ the services of Attorney W. S. Merrell to assist in the case of the city against the Coshocton Gas Company which is to be heard in the court of common pleas at an early date. It will be remembered that following the filing of new schedule with the Public Utilities Commission at Columbus and the announcement that the new rate would become effective September 25, council petitioned the court of common pleas for a temporary restraining order which was granted, until the case should be heard.

Valuable Mare Has to Be Shot

D. S. Hosfelt, of Bacon, Linton twp., lost a valuable draft mare Saturday. Sometime during the previous night the animal had slipped into a run in the pasture. The bank gave way and she became entangled in the roots of an old tree while trying to get out. One of her legs was broken and she was otherwise injured so that shooting was necessary. Mr. Hosfelt valued the mare at more than $300.

A Spider With a Lasso.

Spiders have a number of ingenious ways of alluring and catching their prey. There is an American spider which haunts evergreen trees and snares its dinner by means of a kind of lasso. The web of the spider is triangular in form. Two corners of the triangle are attached to twigs, but the other corner, which ends in a single thread, is held by the spider, perched on a neighboring twig. When a fly strikes the web the spider loosens his hold, and the elastic threads instantly entangle the victim.

Friendship.

Friendship is a vase which, when it is flawed by heat or violence or accident, may as well be broken at once. It can never be trusted again. The more graceful and ornamental it was the more clearly do we discern the hopelessness of restering it to its former state.

Many Women, Girls Perish In Brooklyn Fire

New York, Nov. 6.—Fifteen women and girls, possibly many more, according to police estimates at 2 p. m., perished in a fire in a six-story candy factory at 385 North Sixth street in the Williasburg section of Brooklyn today.

The fire started in the quarters of the Diamond Candy factory, located on the first and second floors and spread so rapidly that many of the terrified women and girls were forced to jump from windows and fire escapes and were either killed or badly injured. Ambulances from eight hospitals have been sent to the scene.

Fire engines were called from all parts of Brooklyn, but the force was unable to cope with the flames for a time.

Meanwhile reports that the death list would be larger than first reports caused extra ambulances to be summoned.

Numerous operators of the Essex Shirt Co. on the fourth and fifth floors, including many men, are reported dead.

18 Hurried To Hospitals.

Eighteen girls, burned or injured by leaps to the street, were hurried to hospitals. Scores of others rushed to the top floor of the wooden building and leaped to the roof of an adjoining building occupied by L. Goldberg & Co. Others tried to rush down the staireases of the burning building and were trapped between floors. They are believed to have perished.

The building is an old one without elevators. The blaze cut off al lescape to the street by the halls. Girls rushed up the stairs, got out on fire escapes or on the roof and screamed for aid.

Flames Break Through Roof.

The flames broke through the roof before help arrived. Then it was that the tragedy assumed enormous proportions. Many hung on the fire escapes. After the first flames appeared, part of the ancient structure caved in.

The entire list of dead will not be known until the ruins are examined. The latest reports are that 45 girls have been taken to hospitals.

How to Have the Best Cough Remedy and Save $2 by Making It at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule contain a large quantity of plain syrup. A pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes, gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50—a clear saving of nearly $2. Full directions with Pinex. It keeps perfectly and tastes good.

It takes hold of the usual cough or chest cold at once and conquers it in 24 hours. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and winter coughs.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes the inflamed membranes in the case of a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and has been used for generations to heal inflamed membranes of the throat and chest.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Solon's Answer.

"What is the most perfect form of government?" was once propounded at the court of Periander, king of Corinth, one of the seven wise men of Greece. His six fellows were present, and of them Bias answered first, giving as his opinion "Where the laws have no superior." Thales of Miletus, the great astronomer, declared, "Where the people are neither too rich nor too poor." In his turn said Anacharsis, the Scythian, "Where virtue is honored and vice detested." Said Pittacus of Mitylene, "Where dignities are always conferred upon the virtuous and never upon the base." Said Cleobulus, "Where the citizens fear blame more than punishment." Said Chilo, the Spartan, "Where the laws are more regarded than the orators."

The last to reply was the youngest but wisest of them all, Solon of Athens, who said, "Where an injury done to the meanest subject is an insult to the whole community."

A Thanksgiving Family Party

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

The most delightful part of my life was that age when boys and girls freely mingle with each other as friends, half boy and girl, half man and woman.

There was the Thanksgiving when the head of our large family invited every member that could be reached to spend a week in his large country house, including Thanksgiving day. There were brothers and sisters, cousins, second cousins and third cousins. Many of my relatives I had never seen.

Those of us of my generation went in for a good time together. The girls were of that age when a taste for mischief predominates. Nothing seemed to please them so well as to perpetrate some innocent practical joke on us boys. A third cousin of mine, Becky Aldrich, one morning while watering some plants with a sprayer sprinkled the back of my neck. Though she was behind me, she failed to escape before I saw who she was.

One night when I was getting ready for bed I found the legs of my pajamas sewed up. When I had ripped the sewing, got them on and tumbled into bed I found the sheets scratched. I uttered one exclamation and heard a giggle at my door. I had turned off the light, so, springing out of bed, I tiptoed hastily to the door, opened it and was in time to grab the last of a flock of girls who ran away in the darkness, for they had taken the precaution to turn off the lights in the hall.

Throwing my arms around my captive, I gave her a smack, she struggling to be free, then let her go. Slipping back into my room, I turned on a light, and there sticking on to the breast of my pajamas was an elongated pin of chased gold set in the center with a single sapphire.

The problem was to identify the girl I had kissed by discovering the owner of the pin. Had it been a cheap article I would have had little chance of doing so, for the girls would all stick together to keep the secret. I consulted with my men cousins, and it was decided that I should put the article up at auction at the Thanksgiving dinner, bids to be accepted only from the men.

Accordingly when the nuts and coffee came on I took the pin out of my vest pocket and, holding it up before the company, said:

"I found this article recently and would be happy to return it to the owner if she will claim it and prove ownership."

I swept the board with my glance, but saw no sign of a giveaway on any girl's face.

None of them claimed the find. Then I continued:

"Since there is no claimant for the article I will put it up at auction, reserving the right to bid to the men present of my own generation, the proceeds of the sale to go to charity."

The girls looked at one another curiously, not knowing what was coming. I called for bids, and one of my cousins, Jack Somers, bid 25 cents. There was an exclamation of disapprobation for such an offer, and when another of my confederates bid 50 cents it was repeated. The gem alone could not have been worth less than $25. When every man who was permitted to bid had done so $2.75 was the highest offer received.

I knocked the article down to the successful man, Jim Atwood, and he handed me the money. While pretending to be interested in the payment I was keeping one eye on the girls, hoping to see some sign of protest against her property being sold out in this way before her face. Had it not been for Jim's resistance I should not have been successful in my game.

"What luck!" he exclaimed, holding the pin before him admiringly. "I've wanted something like this for a gift to my fiancee, and now I have found it."

The fact of another girl possessing her jewelry was too much for its owner. Becky Aldrich showed by her expression that she was at least to be suspected. I took the pin from Jim and passed it to her. A telltale blush [illegible] and the eyes of all the company being concentrated on Becky, it deepened into scarlet. Then there was a burst of laughter, in which every one joined heartily but Becky.

This, it seemed to me, was a famous victory, but there is a saying "He who laughs last laughs best." Becky pretended to be very much offended with me for the course I had taken. This caused me to feel uncomfortable, and I endeavored to placate her. Placating a girl is a dangerous business. Becky for a long while refused to be appeased.

I tried presenting flowers, but they were accepted coldly. Then I suggested that a mate to the pin which had made all the trouble would look very well beside it. Becky pretended to be still more offended that I should offer her jewelry and would not accept the excuse that I was her cousin.

To make a long story short, Becky played me as an angler would play a trout till I was madly in love with her. Having refused me, she seemed to be satisfied and thereafter treated me so considerately that I tried again and was successful. Naturally the anniversary of Thanksgiving brings to me interesting memories.

QUICK WITTED WOMEN.

Their Clever Ruse That Won the Favor of Emperor Konrad.

There are countless stories to illustrate the devotion of women, but the most interesting of them is the one that is recorded in the annals of a home for dependent women at Weinsberg, on the Neckar, in the vicinity of Heidelberg.

At the foot of the mountain was fought one of the fiercest battles of the long struggle between the Guelphs and the Ghibellines. When the conflict was ended and the Ghibelline leader, Emperor Konrad, had driven the Guelph chieftains up the mountain to their stronghold, he laid siege to the ancient castle. After several days he sent word that if the men would surrender he would permit the women to depart in safety, carrying their treasures with them. The terms of surrender were arranged, and the emperor drew up his army to form an escort for the noble ladies with their jewels and other dear possessions.

When the procession of women came down the hill the hostile army saw, to its amazement, that every gentlewoman carried a man on her back. The men they carried were the Guelph officers who were to have remained in the castle and been made prisoners of war. Konrad was so touched by this expression of devotion on the part of these wives and mothers that he permitted the women to go back for their jewels. In 1820 Queen Charlotte of Wurttemberg, daughter of George III. and a member of the Guelphs, built the asylum on the hill as a memorial to those quick witted Guelph women.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

GIRLS IN BAD HEALTH

Hundreds of girls go to work day after day, afflicted with some ailment peculiar to their sex, dragging one foot wearily after the other, working always with one eye on the clock and wishing for closing time to come. Every such girl should rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore her to a normal healthy condition, then work will be a pleasure. For forty years this famous root and herb medicine has been preeminently successful in controlling the diseases of women. Why don't you try it?

THEATRES

"THE ROSARY"

The Mystic theatre has secured the seven-reel Selig Red Seal Play "The Rosary" for today and Wednesday and Manager Herbig is certain that this will be one of the biggest successes thus far shown at the well known house. The story tells how Father Kelly, visiting the young broker, whom he has reared as his own son because in the distant past he loved his mother, sees the dawn of a domestic tragedy when the broker suspects his wife of being untrue to him. The wife seeks to shield her sister's name, when the latter is placed in a compromising position and this leads the husband to believe her guilty of the unforgivable sin. The near tragedy which results is told in a most convincing way in the film. In the end Father Kelly's life is brightened by a reconciliation and explanation which takes place at the door of the church which the broker has given him.

SIXTH STREET THEATRE

The theatrical firm of Cohan and Harris are going to present another one of their laughing hits at the 6th Street Theatre Wednesday night, Nov. 10th, in "It Pays To Advertise."

The piece is a straight farce comedy and it comes to us with a year's run record in New York, where it wsa pronounced a topknotcher in the season's play offerings.

From all reports there isn't a tired business man in all this broad land who won't find a viewing of this farce a better tonic, general bracer and health restorer than any doctor's perscription can supply.

AN INVITATION.

Manager Herbig, of the Mystic theatre, has extended an invitation to the clergy, press and heads of the various women's clubs to attend a private exhibition of "The Rosary" this morning at 9:45 at the Mystic theatre.

ANCIENT BAGDAD.

Its Ruined Mosques, Crumbling Walls and Rich Bazaars.

Squalor and ruin are the present characteristics of ancient Bagdad, the once beautiful city of "The Arabian Nights." Of its famous hundred mosques only about thirty are now in use. Several are so dilapidated that their crumbling roofs and walls threaten the lives of the devout who still worship in them.

The one splendid wall, built of the handsome Arabian brick and extending around the city a distance of five miles, still stands, but it is broken in many places. The four original gates remain, and the oldest and finest one, bearing the date of 1220, has not been opened since the middle of the seventeenth century.

The famous river Tigris, a muddy stream flowing sluggishly during the greater part of the year, divides Bagdad into two parts, which are connected by a rickety bridge of boats nearly 200 feet long. When the snow melts upon the Armenian mountains the Tigris rises, sometimes floods part of the city and often carries away the bridge.

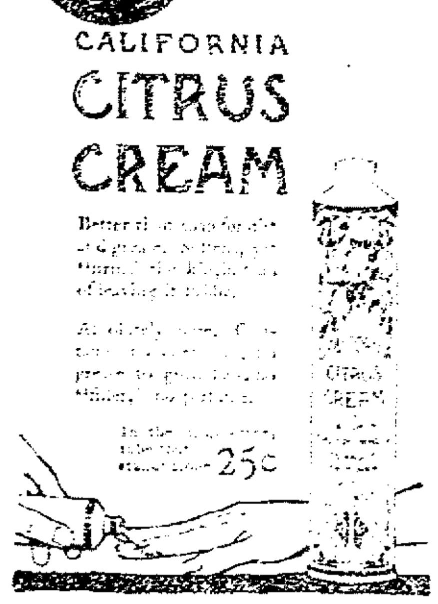

The bazaars of Bagdad exhibit rich merchandise of many kinds, including Turkish and European products, both modern and antique, and are the most attractive part of the city.—New York Tribune.

Her Dowry

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

Jim Hathaway, an American, was in Paris studying art when the great European war broke out and volunteered in the American legion. He was severely wounded at the battle of the Marne and discharged from the service. Before enlisting he had been on the eve of setting out to what was formerly Bretagne, on the west coast of France, but now divided into several departments. After a partial recovery he concluded to carry out his previous intention, hoping to gain strength by breathing the salt air. He took with him sketching materials, but made little use of them, sitting most of the time in an invalid chair on a beach fanned by the sea breeze.

One day when he was thus occupied, or, rather, unoccupied, he fell asleep. When he awoke, a short distance before him was a young girl sitting at an easel. Her back being to him, he could not see her face, but from her costume he judged that she was a peasant. This theory, however, did not correspond with her painting pictures, the one before her, visible to the ex-soldier, showing considerable skill. After watching her for some time he suddenly called out:

"Mademoiselle!"

The girl turned, showing a face indicating refinement, and looked at Hathaway.

"The coloring you are giving the water," continued the young man in French, "is not what it must be, considering that of the sky. There is too much blue in it."

The girl turned again to her picture, looked from it out to the water and the sky and admitted that monsieur's criticism was correct. Then she proceeded to change the coloring.

Hathaway chatted with her while she painted and before they parted told her about the war, his wound and that he had come to the coast to regain his strength. This was the beginning of an acquaintance.

Meanwhile Hathaway regained his strength. The girl, who gave her name as Louise, proved herself far more companionable than might have been expected from a simple country girl. She appeared to be unsophisticated, but Hathaway came to suspect that she was less so than she appeared. Now and again there came a twinkle to her eye that confirmed this suspicion. This twinkle, accompanied as it was by a smile that produced a pair of pretty dimples, was very charming. Before the young American realized where he was drifting he was madly in love.

Then came those efforts to escape from an enthrallment with one of an inferior social grade which have from time immemorial been made by lovers. But Hathaway was not successful and lingered on at the coast instead of escaping from temptation by taking himself elsewhere.

One day Louise told him that a fete day was approaching at which a dance would be held for marriageable girls, who would be present with a view to being selected as wives. She explained to him that they would wear skirts composed of white and yellow bands indicating the dowry they would receive. Each white band represented a hundred, each yellow one a thousand francs. Hathaway expressed a desire to witness this curious scene, and Louise told him when and where it would take place.

On reaching the ballroom he saw Louise dancing, her skirt being composed of two white stripes and three yellow ones, indicating that her dowry would be 3,200 francs, or $608. The moment he entered the room she looked at him, then cast her eyes down to the stripes indicating the amount of her dowry, as much as to say, "You see what I will bring you if you marry me."

Louise was far more refined looking than any girl in the room and acknowledged to be the most beautiful. She sailed past Hathaway temptingly, and he was sorely tempted. When she had finished the dance he joined her, and as the atmosphere in the room was hot and close she expressed a desire to breathe the outer air. They walked out into a moonlight night.

Byron says, "The devil's in the moon for mischief." Hathaway proved this by telling Louise that he loved her. She gave him a chance to withdraw by saying that she was quite sure he was a gentleman and would regret a marriage with a mere peasant. But he swore that he would love her if she were in the lowest [illegible] of human beings.

The next morning he woke up in the sunlight instead of the moonlight and was of a very different mind. Indeed, he was conscious of having taken a very [illegible] step. What would he do to [illegible] of his proposal? Then, like a [illegible] pushed to the other extreme, [illegible] not wish to get out of it.

During the [illegible] a letter called and told Hathaway [illegible] had been sent to conduct [illegible] money [illegible] in the vicinity [illegible] had been visited for the summer [illegible] American family, who wished [illegible] to [illegible] him. He [illegible] and was ushered into a drawing [illegible]. A lady rose to receive him [illegible] amazed at once as Louise [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in [illegible] [illegible].

Louise [illegible] she had gone to France to study art and [illegible] to go about sketching as a peasant. Each yellow stripe on the dress she had worn the night before had stood for $100,000.

If you desire them scrambled and hanker after being considered "smart" tersely add, "Wreck 'em," thereby greatly impressing the diminutive junior clerk at the next table.—London Standard.

THE SPEED OF NO RETURN.

Velocity a Body Needs to Leave the Earth and Never Come Back.

There are a great many odd terms in science, none of which has a title so weird as the speed of no return. This means the velocity a body must have in leaving the earth in order for it never to come back. It has been accurately worked out and is found to be about seven miles a second. Now, though this speed has never been obtained by artificial means on the earth, still it is interesting to note the theory as regards the further actions of the body. It would continue outward in a curved line until it was controlled by balancing forces, mainly the earth, moon and sun, in such a way as to make it have an orbit of its own. So it would go on revolving forever just as any other planet.

Although this speed has never been obtained by artificial means, it is found in nature on the earth, and its application has a great deal to do with animal life on our planet. As is well known, it is a pet theory of the scientists that the earth is losing its atmosphere, just as the moon has already lost hers, on account of the wonderful vibrational speed of the molecules of a gas. Hydrogen gas is known to have a molecular velocity of over the necessary amount, and it is a startling proof of the theory that no free hydrogen is found in our atmosphere. The theory is that this gas on being set free rises on account of its lightness, and when it gets to the outside edge of our ocean of air is left behind on one of its jumps, the earth going forward at a great rate itself, something like eight miles a second.

As the earth gradually lost its atmosphere it would become colder and colder on account of its inability to hold the heat received from the sun, and all animal and vegetable life would cease. This has already happened to the moon, its temperature never rising above zero, though the sun shines on it for two weeks at a time.

It is needless to say that even if this speed could be obtained by a cannon ball or other comparatively small body the friction with the air on its way would immediately burn it up, just as the shooting stars we see are burned up before reaching the earth. So if the visiting of the moon ever takes place it will have to be accomplished in a carriage with very thick sides and made of a material whose melting point is very high.—New York Tribune.

Mt. Zion Union Meets.

The Mt. Zion W. C. T. U. will meet Wednesday afternoon, November 10, at the home of Mrs. Elmer Law. The program will begin at 1 o'clock.

Coulter-Vance Engagement Announced.

An attractive evening party with which Miss Bertha Coulter entertained at her home on South Lawn avenue, last evening, served to announce engagement of her sister, Miss Anna Coulter and Frank Vance, of Columbus.

Chrysanthemums were used in profusion in decorations and the cards bearing the announcemets were hidden in the large blossoms which marked each place at the table. The cards were decorated with kewpies and pink ribbons and marked places for: Mrs. Edward Jacobs, Mrs. Jesse Shaw, Misses Imogene and Emma Dawson, Mildred Ballard, Edna Lang, Emma Schlarb, Susan Standen, Anna Coulter, Nellie Gildow, the bride-elect and the hostess.

December was the month given for the nuptials but the date was not announced.

Surprise For Bride-Elect.

Miss Margaret Carton, whose marriage to Francis Weaver is to be solemnized at Sacred Heart Catholic church some day during this week, was the guest of honor at a charming evening party with which her cousin, Mrs. James Mahoney entertained at the Carton home on Main street, last evening. Twenty-five guests enjoyed the function.

Chautauqua Circle Meets.

The regular fortnightly meeting of the Chautauqua circle was held last evening at the home of Mrs. A. E. Carnahan, on Locust street. Mrs. Otis Morse read a paper on "The Romance of Old Boston," which she had cleverly written in poetry. Roll call was answered by quotations from Will Carleton.

Father Lights Meet.

Miss Nelle Cheney will be hostess this evening at the meeting of the Farther Light Standard Bearers, of Grace M. E. church at her home on Orchard street. Miss Erma McMannis will be the leader.

Surprise For Bride And Bridegroom Of Fifty Years.

Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Wernett, of Main street, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on November 5, were given a delightful surprise by a company of the neighbors last evening, in honor of the occasion. Golden chrysanthemums, which had been showered upon the bride and bridegroom of fifty years ago, lent their loveliness to the scene and the golden hues were carried out in the cakes and ices brought by the uninvited guests. Among the guests were the following talented musicians who gave a most enjoyable program of music during the evening. Mrs. B. F. Voorhees, Francis Voorhees, Mrs. Harry Keilia, Mrs. Louise Winters and Mrs. C. H. Geidel.

Out of town guests were: Mrs. William Thomoson, of Pittsburg and Miss Minnie Dehmer, of Cincinnati.

Miss Cummings Home.

Miss Nina Cummings has returned to her home in Walhonding, after spending the season trimming in a millinery store in Murray City.

Hoboes Entertained.

One of the most original and unique social affairs of the season was the "Hobo" party given last evening by Miss Hazel Green and Miss Nelle Cheney. An empty house at 1020 Walnut street, was utilized by the young women and appropriately decorated for the occasion. Autumn leaves, red berries and yellow candle light made a pretty effect and an open fire place was used for toasting marshmallows and roasting chestnuts. The guests were dressed as hobos and each one was required to saw wood for their supper, which finally had to be collected from three different houses. There were other stunts in keeping with the spirit of the evening, all much enjoyed.

The young people were chaperoned by Mrs. Fred Green and Miss Elizabeth Roberts and among them were: Amanda Guthrie, of Millersburg, Misses Esther Bullock, Ona Northup, Evelyn Mitchell, Hazel McEvany, Erma Conrad, Helen and Erma McMannis Anna Hall and Mary Lightell. Messers Glover Porter, Harry Porter, McKinley Donley, Russel Moore, Alfred Beck, Carson Baker Clarence Lenhart, Paul McNary, Russell Karr.

Puts Them On Their Feet

Many a man, handicapped for years by coffee and its habit-forming drug, caffeine, has been put on his feet by —America's pure food-drink.

POSTUM

There's a Reason!

Postum is a delightful beverage, free from drugs or harmful ingredients of any sort, but packed full of the rich goodness of whole wheat, roasted with a bit of wholesome molasses.

There's no coffee trouble in Postum,—no headache, no heart-flutter, no sleeplessness, no biliousness, no "fag"—but there is a mighty boost toward health and the joy of living.

Any man, turning from coffee with its ills to this pure food-drink, quickly finds

DO YOU SUFFER FROM BACKACHE?

When your kidneys are weak and torpid they do not properly perform their functions; your back aches and you do not feel like doing much of anything. You are likely to be despondent and to borrow trouble, just as if you hadn't enough already. Don't be a victim any longer. The old reliable medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, gives strength and tone to the kidneys and builds up the whole system. Get it today.

Not A Particle of Dandruff or A Falling Hair

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

Nosed Smashed In Ball Game

While playing football at Hardserabble Sunday afternoon, Clifford Lane, aged 17, of East Walnut street, was kicked in the nose during a scrimmage. The cartilaginous tissue was torn loose. Lane was playing on a Pottery team against the Hardserabble boys. He was attended by Dr. J. G. Smailes.

THE HOLY GRAIL.

Story of the Green Crystal Vase of the Ruins of Cesarea.

Few places are more absolutely cities of the past than Cesarea. Some one has spoken of the remains of its ancient glory as the "ruin of ruins." The medieval town which was twice rebuilt by the crusaders covered scarcely a tenth of the area occupied by the city as St. Paul knew it, and the ruins that we see today are chiefly the relics of the medieval city which was itself built out of the ruins of the ancient city.

What a rich quarry Cesarea has been for other city builders is shown by the fact that, though it has been drawn upon for all these centuries for marble and granite and sandstone, it is not yet absolutely exhausted, but still affords building material for the peasants of the vicinity.

The green crystal vase which was found here when Baldwin I., the great crusader, captured the city at the beginning of the twelfth century, says the Christian Herald, gave rise to the story of the Holy Grail, which has inspired so many legends and poems, for Baldwin and his followers believed that it was the one that was used at the last supper by our Lord, when he gave his disciples the cup of wine and said: "Drink ye all of it. This do in remembrance of me."

Dr. J. C. Hutton, of Zanesville was a business visitor in the city Monday.

LINER BURNS

tain Julian's message, they said, specifically stated that spontaneous combustion was the cause and, furthermore, the greatest precautions were taken to prevent the placing of any bombs on the liner before she left port Saturday afternoon.

The Rochambeau carried a heavy cargo of war munitions and supplies of all sorts destined for the allies. Just before she sailed last Saturday a bomb is said to have been found in a sugar bag about to be placed in one of her holds.

The Second Attempt.

Last December four men were arrested at New Orleans in an alleged conspiracy to blow up the Rochambeau. Included in her cargo was 2511 cases of cartridges, 1000 cases of cartridge shells, 20 cases of rifles and machine guns; a large number of autos and 7200 rolls of wire for the allies' armies.

About 30 Americans were aboard the liner. The other passengers included a number of French residents of Canada, en route to their old homes and several men here on business for the allies.

Howard Dillon and James Kring, both of Canton, were visiting friends in the city over Sunday.

INDOOR LIFE MAKES FAT

Take Oil Of Korein To Keep Weight Down. Or To Reduce Superfluous Fat.

People who are confined within doors and who are deprived of fresh, invigorating air and exercise must take precaution to guard against excessive fatness as acquired by indoor life is unhealthy and a danger to the vital organs of the body. Lack of exercise in the fresh air weakens the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, so that it is unable to produce strong muscles and vitality and the formation of unsightly and unhealthy fat is the result.

If you are 15 or 20 pounds above normal weight you are daily drawing on your reserve strength and are constantly lowering your vitality by carrying this excess burden. Any person who is satisfied in their own mind that they are too stout should go to a good druggist and get a box of oil of korein capsules, and take one after each meal and one just before retiring at night.

Even a few weeks' treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight, digestion should improve, energy return, footsteps become lighter and the skin less flabby in appearance.

Oil of korein is inexpensive, cannot injure, helps the digestion and is designed to increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. Any person who wants to reduce their weight 15 or 20 pounds should give this treatment a trial. There is nothing better. Page & Lorenz can supply you.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat, which clogs Kidneys, then Back hurts and Bladder bothers you.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Thankful For Relief Remedy Brought Her

Says Fruitola and Traxo Possesses All the Merit That Is Claimed for It

Mrs S S Cole

After completing the necessary treatment Mr. S. S. Cole, Lampasas, Texas, was so well pleased with the result that she wrote the Pinus laboratories as follows: "Fruitola and Traxo are all you claim. It removed a quantity of gall-stones and I feel [illegible] saved my life. I am well [illegible] and thankful to you for the great good your medicine has done me."

Fruitola is a powerful lubricant for the intestinal organs and one dose is usually sufficient to clearly demonstrate its efficacy. It softens the congested masses, disintegrates the hardened particles that occasion so much suffering and expels the accumulated waste to the great relief of the patient. Following a dose of Fruitola, Traxo should be taken three or four times a day in order to rebuild and restore the system that has become weakened and run down from constant suffering. It is a splendid tonic, acting on the liver and stomach most beneficially.

Fruitola and Traxo are prepared in the Pinus laboratories at Monticello, Ill., and arrangements have been made to supply them through representative druggists. In Coshocton they can be obtained at Wimmer Arnold Co.

Very well. Turn now to America and the preparedness theories which we all seem to be spring up.

Our real preparedness, is it in drilling soldier boys, or is it not rather in developing MECHANICAL RESOURCEFULNESS AND EFFICIENCY?

We are already, and right now, preparing ourselves in the very best possible way for the emergency of war by our enormous manufacture of machinery.

The group of scientists and inventors Secretary Daniels has gathered around him are better than so many von Hindenburgs and Kitcheners. For if war comes it will be wit against wit, ingenuity against ingenuity.

Take the automobile industry alone. Two million cars are registered in our forty eight states, says Perry Blossom, and they're piling up thousands a day. We lead the world in motor making, and we haven't got well started yet.

He goes on to say that our motor car manufacturers are turning out immense consignments of war stuff for Europe, as well as staggering totals of pleasure cars, trucks, jitneys, and so on for the states. They are also training and developing a vast army of skilled and unskilled mechanics. Furthermore, they are doing the major share to transform a considerable fraction of the populace of the United States into amateur mechanics, for every man who buys a car and cannot afford a chauffeur is bound to take some interest in what makes the wheels go round and how to get 'em going when they stop. There are several million of us now who can tell a spark plug from a floating rear axle.

And that is but one phase of the boundless mechanical activity of America. Every man at work on peaceful machinery is in training for expertness in war machinery if the pinch comes.

The activities of peace are the surest readiness for war. Every man engaged in making screws, bolts, springs, piston-rods, cylinders, drop-forgings, pianos, refrigerating plants, cash-registers, bridges, engines, locomotives, ploughs, harvesters, steam-rollers, dredges, cars, subways, railroads, trolleys, sewing-machines, electrical devices, and all the other details of our Gargantuan, Cyclopean, roaring and rambunctious structure of AMERICAN MACHINERY, is preparing this country as it could be prepared in no other way against that day when some crazy exponent of mediaeval militarism shall undertake to crush the young giant of DEMOCRACY from the face of the earth.

We don't want to be cocky, nor fatuously overconfident, but when Europe or Asia or any possible combination thereof comes over our way to put a hundred million self-reliant inventive and resourceful MECHANICS out of business, they will have SOME JOB!"

Mr. Rockefeller observed to his pastor recently: "If you can beat me at preaching, I can beat you at golf." Thus does the thrifty old man give farther evidence that he always has an eye single to the important things of life.

Russia has something on the other warring nations in one respect. Whenever the grub stakes run a little low in Russia they just order a three-days fast, and the boys all stand for it.

If Roumania and Greece keep on much longer trying to guess right on which side is going to win they will both be incapacitated for actual fighting by nervous prostration.

Notwithstanding the assurances of the government that the low price of oysters is to be permanent, they still have some trouble in competing with wolfish and tripe.

It is reported that England has something like 90,000 schoolboys [illegible]. [illegible] it would seem as if the majority of them [illegible].

The Wise Guy says when some women try to be polite it gets on your nerves so that you wish they would give it up and just be natural.

PEOPLES' FORUM

SOCIALIST TROUBLES AIRED

Editor The Tribune:—

Because of the financial condition of the Socialist local, they were compelled to give up labor hall as their meeting place, and, as they had no money in the treasury, they were compelled to get a meeting place which was of no expense to them. L. N. Staats, one of the members of the local, granted the local his law office for a meeting place free of charge. The local has been meeting in his office six months. Everything went along smoothly until some of the members of the local, including myself, criticised his ideas and conceptions of Socialism. From Mr. Staats' view-point he is above criticism, especially from a Socialist, so, at the meeting of the local on November 7, the meeting was in session at the time Mr. Staats came in and called me to an adjoining room. He told me that he was paying rent for that office and that my presence was not wanted in the room and for me not to show myself in his office again.

He declared I had talked about him when in fact the only thing I ever said was to criticise his method of carrying on a political campaign. By ordering me from his office, he also by that act ordered the local to vacate his office. By so doing he has expressed the idea that he is done with the Socialist party and that he has used the Socialists all he can to further his own political ambitions.

NOTABLE BIRTHDAYS TODAY
Nov. 9.

Col. John Temple Graves, noted southern orator and journalist, now speaking in Southern cities in the interest of national defense, is 57 years old today. In early life he was a newspaper reporter and at 25 was editor of a newspaper in Jacksonville. Later he went to Atlanta, where he edited several daily newspapers, and became part owner of the Daily Georgian. Since its purchase by Hearst he has been connected with the Hearst publications. He is a prolific writer. His articles on universal peace by arbitration created great interest in the subject, and in the south he has been the leader of the movement for the separation of the black and white races. Col. Graves was born in Abbeville County, South Carolina, on Nov. 9, 1856, the son of General James P. Graves. He is descended from the Calhoun family, noted for oratory. He studied at the University of Georgia, then entered journalism. At one time he was a candidate for the U. S. Senate from Georgia, but he withdrew on account of his health. In 1908 he was the candidate of the National Independence Party for Vice-President. He has been the orator on many notable occasions in the North and South. Col. Graves is a progressive, and is ready at all times to take up the cudgels for measures that aim for popular benefit.

Bagpipes In Nero's Time.

Bagpipes are generally ascribed to Scotland, where they have been in use for a long time, but it was an instrument upon which the ancient Greeks and Romans played. Nero is said to have performed upon it, and an old piece of Grecian sculpture represents a player on the bagpipes dressed in the fashion that is known today as the highland costume.

The Battle-Cry

By CHARLES NEVILLE BUCK

Author of "The Call of the Cumberlands"

Illustrations by C. D. Rhodes

(Copyright by Charles Neville Buck.)

"Good God, Anse!" burst out the other Havey. "Does ye realize what he'll ye turns loose when ye tries ter drag Old Milt ter cote in Peril?"

"Yes I know that." The answer was calm. "I'll give ye a list of witnesses. Tell Sidering to keep these true tells secret. I'll ride over and testify myself, an' I'll 'tend to keepin' the witnesses quiet. I don't know whether we'll ever try these cases, but it's just as well to be ready along every line."

Breck Havey stood gazing down at the hearth with a troubled face. At last he hazarded a remonstrance.

"Anse," he said, "I hain't never questioned ye. I've always took yore counsel. Ye're the head of the Haveys, but next to you I'm the man they harkens to most. If any man has got ter dispute yer, I reckon ye'd take it most willin'ly from me."

"What is it, Breck? I'm plumb willin' to listen to your counsel."

"Then I'll talk outspoken. Ter try ter convict these men in cote means to take a desperate chance. Ye can't hardly succeed, an' if ye fails ye've lost yore hold on the Haveys—ye're plumb, eternally done for."

"I don't aim to fail."

"No; but ye mought. Anse, no man hain't never questioned yore loyalty till now. I mought as well tell ye straight what talkin's goin' round."

Anse stiffened. "What is it?" he demanded.

"Some folks 'low that ther Haveys don't mean as much ter ye now as ther furrin' schoolteacher does. Them folks'll be pretty apt ter think ye ain't tryin' ter please them so much as her—if yer attempts this."

Anse stood for a long minute silent, and his bronzed features grew taut. At last he inquired coolly:

"What do you think, Breck?"

"I'd trust ye till hell froze."

"All right. Then do as I tells ye, an' if I fails I reckons you'll be head of the Haveys in my place."

Down at the school there was going to be a Christmas tree that year. Never before had the children of the "branch-water folks" heard of a Christmas tree. The season of Christ's birth had always been celebrated with moonshine jug and revolver. It was dreaded in advance and mourned over in retrospect.

Now in many childish hearts large dreams were brewing. Eager anticipations awaited the marvels. The honored young fir tree which was to bear a fruitage of gifts and lights had been singled out and marked to the ax. Anse Havey and Juanita had explored the woods together, bent on its selection. Perhaps Juanita and Dawn were as much excited as the children, but to Dawn it meant more than to anyone else. She was to accompany Juanita to Lexington to buy gifts and decorations and would have her first wondrous glimpse of the lights and crowds of a city.

Milt was there at college and would be returning about the same time, so the mountain girl secretly wrote him of her coming. And even facing so grave a crisis, Anse Havey thought of that tree and hoped that Luke would not come back before Christmas.

That night, while he was sitting with Juanita and the fire was flashing on her cheeks, he said moodily: "I'm afraid ye'll have to start despisin' me all over again."

She looked up in astonishment.

"Why?" she asked.

"I've got to kill a man."

She rose from her chair, her face pallid.

"Kill a man?" she echoed.

"God knows I hate to do it." He rose, too, and stood before the hearth. "But I reckon it had better be me than Jeb."

"Do you mean—" she broke off and finished brokenly, "that Fletch's murderer is back?"

"He's comin'. He's comin' to kill somebody else. Most likely me. It's a question of settlin' scores with a murderer that kilt Fletch for a ticket West and a hundred dollars—or lettin' young Jeb McNash go crazy an' startin' the feud all over again. I reckon ye sees that I ain't no choice."

She came nearer and stood confronting him so close that he felt her breath on his face. She broke out in a low, tense voice: "Suppose he kills you?"

"He'll have his chance," said Anse Havey shortly. "I ain't 'lowin' to shoot him down from ambush."

The girl leaned forward and clutched his hands in both her own. Under the tight pressure of her fingers he felt every nerve in his body tingle and leap into a hot ecstasy of emotion, while his face became white and drawn.

"Don't risk your life," she pleaded. "Your people can't spare you; I can't spare you. Not now, Anse; I need you too much."

"Ye needs me?"

"Yes, yes," she swept on, and for an instant he was on the verge of withdrawing his hands and crushing her to him, but something in his face had warned her. She dropped the hands she had been holding and said in an altered tone: "It's not just me; it's bigger than that. It's my work. We've come to be such good friends that I couldn't go on without you. My work would fail."

For a while he was silent, then he said very slowly and very bitterly: "Oh, it's just your work that needs me?"

"But, Anse," she argued, "my work is all that's biggest and best in me. You understand, don't you?"

For a moment his voice got away from him and he rose fiercely:

"I don't give a damn for your work!" he blazed out. "It's you I'm interested in. That's the sort of friend I am."

She looked up at his gleaming eyes, a little amazed, and he went on, quietly enough now:

"If I fails to hang Luke Thixton I'll be right now what ye prophesied for me twenty years hence—the leader of the wolf-pack that goes down an' gets trod on. I ain't never put no such strain on my influence as this is goin' to be. I've got to hold back the Haveys an' the McBriars whilst this court foolishness dawdles along, an' if I fails down Jeb is goin' to kill Luke anyway. I'm doin' this because ye asks it; an' now I'll say good night to ye."

Juanita Holland stood looking at the door he had closed behind him, a wild sense of tumult and uneasiness in her heart.

"'That's the sort of friend I am,'" she repeated to herself.

CHAPTER XX.

There still remained the task of winning young Jeb's assent to his plan, and Anse Havey foresaw a stubborn battle there. Jeb had been reading law that winter; reading by the light of a log fire through long and lonely evenings in a smoke-darkened cabin.

When Anse Havey called from the stile one night, the boy laid a battered Blackstone on his thin knee and called out: "Come in, Anse, and pull up a cheer!"

Anse had been rehearsing his arguments as he rode through the sleet-lashed hills, and he was deeply troubled.

The man and the boy sat on either side of the fireplace. Penetrating gusts swept in at the broken chinking and up through the warped floor until old Beardog, lying at their feet, shivered as he slept with his forepaws stretched on the hearth and the two men hitched their chairs nearer to the blaze. By the bed still stood the rifle that had been Fletch's; the rifle upon which the boy's eyes always fell and which to him was the symbol of his duty.

As Bad Anse Havey talked of the future with all the instinctive forcefulness that he could command, the boy's set face relaxed, and into his eyes came a glint of eagerness, because he himself was to play no small part in these affairs.

Into his heart crept the first burning of ambition, the first reaching out after a career. He saw a future opening before him, and his grave eyes were drinking in pictures in the live embers.

"I've Got to Kill a Man!"

Then, when ambition had been kindled, the older man broached the topic which was the crux of his plea.

"The man that can do things for the mountains must be willin' to make a heap of sacrifices, Jeb," he said.

Jeb laughed, looking about the bare room of his cabin.

"Mek sacrifices?" he repeated. "I hain't never knowed nothin' else but that. I reckon I hain't skeered of it."

"I didn't mean that way, Jeb." Anse spoke slowly, holding the boy with his eyes, and something of his meaning sank in so that the lad's lean face again hardened.

"Nothin' hain't stand between me an' what I've got ter do, Anse," he said slowly. He did not speak now with wild passion, but calm finality. "I've done took ther oath."

For a while Anse Havey did not reply. At last he said quietly: "I reckon ye've got rid of the idea that I was aimin' to deceive ye, Jeb. I told ye that when Fletch's assassin came back to the mountains I'd let ye know. I'm goin' to keep my word."

Jeb rose suddenly from his chair and stood with the fire lighting up his ragged trousers and the frayed sleeves of his coat.

"Air he back now?" he demanded.

Anse shook his head.

"Not yet, Jeb; but he's coming." He saw the twitch that went across the tight-closed lips which made no comment.

"Jeb," he continued, "I want ye to help me. I want ye to be big enough to put by things that it's hard to put by."

The boy shook his head.

"Anse," he replied slowly, "ask me ter do anything else in God Almighty's world, but don't ask me ther, 'cause if ye does I've got ter deny ye."

"I ain't askin' ye to let the man go unpunished. I'm only askin' you to let me punish him with the law."

Astonishment was writ large in every feature of Jeb's face. He stood in the wavering circle of light while the shadows swallowed the corners of the cabin, and wondered if he had heard rightly. At last his voice carried a note of deep disappointment, and he spoke as though unwilling to utter such treasonable words.

"I reckon, Anse," he suggested, "ye wouldn't hardly hev asked a thing like thet afore"—there was a hesitating halt before he went on—"afore a furrin woman changed yore fashion of lookin' at things."

Anse Havey felt his face redden, and an angry retort rose to his lips. But the charge was true.

He went on as though Jeb had not spoken.

"All I ask is that when that man comes ye'll hold your hand until the cote has acted."

"Does ye reckon Milt McBriar aims ter let Sidering try kin of his?" was the next incredulous question.

Anse Havey's voice broke out of its quiet tones and his eyes woke to a fire that was convincing.

"By heavens, I aims ter have him do it! I ain't askin' leave of Milt McBriar." Then he added: "I aims to hang the man that kilt your daddy in the jail house yard at Peril, an' if the McBriars get him they've got to kill me first. Will you hold your hand till I'm through?"

The boy stood there, his fingers slowly clenching and opening. Finally he said: "Hit ain't a-goin' ter satisfy me ter penitentiary thet feller. He's got ter die."

"He's goin' to die. If I fail, then—" the clansman raised his hands in a gesture of concession—"then he's yours. Will you wait?"

"I don't hardly believe," said Jeb McNash with conviction, "any man livin' kin keep Milt's hired assassin in no jail house long enough ter try an' hang him. But I'm willing ter see. I'll hold my hand thet long, Anse, but—"

Once more a spasmodic tautening of muscles convulsed the boy's frame and his voice took on its excited note of shrillness: "But I warns ye, I'm goin' ter be settin' in ther high cote. I hain't never a-goin' ter leave hit, an' ef that jury clars him—or ef they jest penitentiaries him—I'm goin' ter kill him as he sets thar in his cheer—so help me God!"

Loyal in their stubborn adherence to feud obedience, the judge and grand jury secretly returned two indictments bearing the names of Luke Thixton as principal and Milton McBriar, Sr., as accessory to the crime of murder "against the peace and dignity of the commonwealth of Kentucky, and contrary to the statute in such case made and provided." Also, they withheld their action from public announcement.

Surreptitiously and guardedly a message traveled up the watercourses to the remotest Havey cabin. Bad Anse bade his men be ready to rise in instant response to his call, and they made ready to obey.

One day Juanita Holland and Dawn set out for Lexington to do their Christmas shopping.

Anse Havey rode with them across to Peril and waved his hat in farewell as they stood in the vestibule of the rickety passenger coach. It was a very shabby car of worn and faded plush, but to Dawn it seemed a fairy chariot.

As they entered the lobby of the Phoenix hotel, in Lexington, a tall youth rose from a chair and came forward. If the boy was cruder and darker and less trim in appearance than his Blue-Grass brethren, he carried his head as high and walked as independently. He came forward with his hat in his hand and said: "I'm mighty glad ter see ye, Dawn."

Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma And Severe Coughs Promptly Relieved

With Best Home-Made Medicine—12c Teaspoonful—50 Cents.

One of the most dangerous things to neglect is a Cold or Severe Cough. If treatment is commenced promptly with the proper remedy, both are easily cured, but if neglected they oftimes develop into Pneumonia or Consumption, or some Chronic Bronchial affection. Most persons neglect treating themselves for the principal reason that they don't think it serious enough to go to a doctor; thinking it will get well itself without treatment or don't know what good medicine to buy at a drug store, and if something more serious doesn't develop, it becomes deep seated through the winter and hangs on the whole winter, when it might have otherwise been speedily cured. And Schiffmann's New Concentrated Expectorant been used promptly.

No risk whatever is run in buying this remedy as Wimmer-Arnold Drug Store will refund your money if it does not give perfect satisfaction or is not found to be the very best remedy you have ever used for stubborn Coughs, Cold, Bronchial Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough and Hoarseness.

This new remedy is altogether different from any other kind, and is so strongly concentrated that two ounces (60c worth), make a full pint, 128 teaspoonsful of excellent cough medicine, by simply mixing it at home with one pint of granulated sugar and one-half pint of water. It makes a whole family supply, while bottles of the old-fashioned, ordinary, ready-made kinds of doubtful merit and without a guarantee usually only hold 20 to 32 teaspoonfuls. It is prepared from strictly harmless plants, and is so pleasant that children like to take it and it can be given them with perfect safety as it positively contains no chloroform, opium, morphine or other narcotic, as do most cough relatives. All druggists of this city sell it under the same "Money Back" guarantee as the famous Asthmador. R. J. Schiffmann Proprietor, St. Paul, Minn.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's recipe to bring back color, thickness and lustre—Everybody is using it again.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the disadvantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your crowning glory. A few application of Sage Tea and Sulphur darkens its appearance so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell, as it darkens so gradually and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Head Stopped Up? Can't Breathe? Try the Vick Vap-O-Rub Treatment

Vapor treatments are best for inflammations of the air passages. The vapors carry the medication direct to the inflamed surfaces without disturbing the stomach, as internal medicines will do. A very convenient vapor treatment is a good application of Vick's "Vap-O-Rub" Salve over the throat and chest, covered with a warm flannel cloth. The body heat releases vapors that are inhaled with every breath, opening the air passages, loosening the phlegm, and healing the raw surfaces. For deep chest colds, first apply hot wet towels to open the pores. Vick's is then absorbed through the skin, taking out that tightness and soreness. 25c, 50c, or $1.00.
